Susan Barton Award

Know a Sister within your local who has done outstanding work on women's issues?

Nominations are now being accepted for the Annual Susan Barton Award.

This award pays homage to Susan's activist spirit, volunteerism and her commitment to workers rights, equality and social justice.

The Women's Committee of the New Brunswick Council of Nursing Home Unions created this award to honor Susan Barton.

The award will be presented to a past or present Sister of the New Brunswick Council of Nursing Home Unions annually.

Woman activist who:

- demonstrated through actions a deep commitment to social justice.
- worked to break barriers for the participation of women within the labor movement.

- showed initiative and a pioneering spirit in promoting women's rights.

- contributed to her community in helping to build a stronger social movement.

CUPE locals affiliated to the New Brunswick Council of Nursing Home Unions can nominate a Sister for this award.

Nominations should be submitted to the Women's Committee Susan Barton Award no later than February 8st 2020 (Please use the form on reverse).

The winner of the award will be presented with an elegant engraved glass award.

Please submit your nomination soon.
